

Bio – Michael Krish-Penny

My name is Michael Krish-Penny, I support my family as a remote worker in the non-profit sector, but I've lived, worked and studied in communities across Canada. I originally trained as a lawyer then returned to graduate school for a Master's Degree of Public Administration. For 10 years I lived in our nation's capital broadening my communications and organizing experience.

In January of 2021 I accepted a job with the District of Clearwater, where I learned about local government, taking the minutes for Council for two years and was appointed as Chief Election Officer for the 2022 Municipal Election. In 2023 I took a year-long contract with the Centre for Family Equity to assist with their transition to a new website and launching a campaign for transit equity for youth, Transit for Teens.

Today I reside in Clearwater, BC with my wife, two children and the goodest of dogs, Disco.
